

CITIZENS' ENDORSE ROPING-OFF PLAN

West End Association Favors
Scheme for Protection of School Children.

Roping off the schools at recess times as a protective measure for the children at play was urged by the West End Citizens' Association, which met last night in the Concordia Lutheran Church, 20th and G streets. A resolution endorsing the plan of Maj. Harry L. Gessford was adopted following its presentation by James F. Lennon.

It was pointed out that upon the streets where there were street car lines the roping-off scheme still could be used, and the streets be roped so as to allow the passage of street cars, but of no other traffic at the time of recess.

"That the District Commissioners compel the ash collectors of the city to procure a gang to be used to notify residents of their arrival, was the first of a resolution adopted, following a brief discussion of the trials and tribulations of getting one's ash removed. The motion was introduced by George E. Strobel.

A protest was registered, notification of which to be sent to Commissioner Kutz, regarding the extension of several manholes and trenches in the West End section, which several members of the association started to be left entirely without danger signals.

Dr. William P. Herbst, president, announced that he had appointed Dr. Mark P. Finley, chairman of the in-house committee with orders to ask that the march up the avenue as far as Washington Circle.

The work of the Mothers' Congress and the Parent-Teachers' Association in their investigation of the District schools was heartily endorsed.

Harry Spelman, J. Scott Conover and Lucian Thaden were elected to membership, and the resolutions of several who had moved outside of the association's territory were accepted.

A condensed address on the "red plague," depicting the nature of the social disease, was made by Dr. Howard Fisher of the public health service. He advised the members of the association of the young upon the mysteries of life, and the doing away of the so-called false modesty. A rising voice of thanks was rendered him at the close of his address.

ARMY SCHOOLS' PROGRAM
Educators to Discuss Methods for Benefiting Enlisted Men.

A conference of civilian educational consultants and development specialists will be held in this city December 7 and 8, at the Hotel Hamilton, by Maj. Gen. William G. Haan, director of the war plans division, general staff, and will consider reports to be made by the various Army schools for enlisted men. These reports are expected to show what difficulties are met by the various Army schools for enlisted men. A rising voice of thanks was rendered him at the close of his address.

The Army today, through its school system, said Gen. Haan today, "is offering to its enlisted personnel an opportunity to obtain an education which is both practical and thorough and which embraces both trade training and the fundamental subjects of a general culture course. This school system, which has been operating for almost one and a half years, has proved its worth, not only because it has increased the earning power of the students, but because it has been of inestimable value in the development of intelligent and loyal soldiers and citizens."

APPOINTED INSTRUCTOR.
Dr. C. Nuebaum, formerly of the magnetic section of the bureau of standards, has been appointed research associate in the division of industrial research and co-operation of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

SPECIAL NOTICES.
YOUR WOOD FLOORS PLAINED, SCRAPE and refinished; prices most exceedingly reasonable. C. ADAMS, 618 G St. N.W.; Phone 7288.

GENERAL HOUSECLEANING NEATLY DONE; very reasonable price. Drop me word. Address: Box 264-C, Star office.

I WILL NOT BE RESPONSIBLE FOR DEERS contracted by any other than myself. H. S. BARRER, 644 9th St. N.E.

BOILER AND HEATER REPAIRS.
To the trade—We beg to call your attention to our complete stock of repair parts for hot water, hot air and steam-heating plants. HEDDERLY & WEST COMPANY, 1232 New York Ave. N.W.

CARPENTER JOINING, METAL GARAGES.
G. J. DERUSHA, 617 Md. Ave. S.W. 2nd

EXPERIENCED DRIVER would like to make the arrangement to drive Ford car to Florida. Address: Box 272-C, Star office.

HARRIS HAT FRAME SHOP.
Room 2100 F. Always something new in hat frames. $5c; hats made to order, reasonable. Hemmelt, Inc., good work, quick service, 2 yards, 25c.

$2,000 REWARD.
The First National Bank of St. Marys, at Leonardtown, in St. Marys county, state of Maryland, will pay the sum of ($2,000) two thousand dollars for the apprehension and conviction of the persons or persons who burglarized the said bank on the 12th and 13th, 1920. THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF ST. MARYS, at Leonardtown, Md.

GRAND AND UPRIGHT PIANO FOR RENT at reasonable rates. Rent applied on purchase price by agreement. Hugo Worth, 1110 G, sole agent for Kruehlich Bach and Emerson pianos. Victrolas and records.

BECKER PAINT & GLASS CO.
1229 Wisconsin Avenue.

Xmas Announcements
Tastefully Typed and Artistically Printed.

National Capital Press
511 11th St. Phone M. 650 (3 trunk lines).

HOUSE WIRING
Carroll P. Carpenter is wiring a house every two days. Is yours the next? Remember this name, "CARPENTER," Electrician, P.O. Box 1300.

DOLL SALE
At Doll Hospital
Over 3,000 Imported and Domestic Dolls to be sacrificed. Last year in top business. Open Evenings. Doll Hospital. ESTABLISHED 20 YEARS.

H. A. Garren, 907 H N.E.
The only and original "Biggs" in the heating and plumbing business in the city.

The Biggs Engineering Co.
1316 11th St. N.W. Phone M. 217.
HEATING—PLUMBING
Warren W. Biggs, W. K. Pace, Jas. Cunningham.
Heating and Plumbing repairs and remodeling promptly attended to by expert mechanics.
Roof Troubles?
—STOVE TROUBLES—
FURNACE TROUBLES—
Be sure you get to end them all.
Call the heating and roofing experts.
Grafton & Son
In Washington Loan and Trust Bldg.
"Heating and Roofing Experts, 35 years." Main 700.

PRESIDENT OF G. W. U. REPLIES TO PROTESTS FROM BAPTISTS

William Miller Collier Declares That University Must Be Non-Sectarian, Reviewing Its History.

President William Miller Collier of George Washington University has issued a statement with regard to the Baptist protest against the union of George Washington University with the American University.

The statement is as follows: "My attention has been called to the report in one of the Washington papers of November 19 that on the recent session of the Columbia Baptist Association a history of the former relations of the university with the Baptist Church was given and the desire was expressed that they might be restored, in view of the fact that the local Baptists would now be able to devote to the university a considerable portion of the $50,000,000 which that denomination has raised throughout the nation for educational purposes. It is also stated that the association regretted that a number of years ago, when the Baptists were somewhat financially straitened, they had to cease support of the university and the university, separated. The article to which I refer also declares that so strong is the desire of the Baptist Association today for a reunion with the university, that it voiced its objections to the union, which has been under consideration between the George Washington University and the American University. The latter, it may be said, is a Methodist institution.

Grateful for Influence.
"The George Washington University is very proud of the many years' association which it had with the Baptist denomination, and is grateful to it for some very wholesome influences and for some financial help that was extended to it by Baptists in its early days, when it was known as the Columbian college. That financial help was, however, always grossly inadequate to its needs.

"The relations between the university and the denomination have been somewhat hazy. Although the institution was founded in 1821, as the result of the persistent efforts of Luther Rice, a great Baptist home missionary, it was not, at first, in any way, subject to the control or supervision of that denomination and no religious test was applied to its trustees, faculty or students. Afterward a closer relationship with the Baptist Church was established. By an amended charter a large proportion of its trustees had to be Baptists. As a result, for several decades, its presidents were members of that church and the institution was properly considered as belonging to that denomination. This connection was, however, dissolved, very many years ago, because of the admitted financial inability of the Baptists, at that time, to support the university. Since then the university has remained thoroughly Christian in character (using the word 'Christian' in the broadest sense), has been absolutely non-sectarian, is free from all denominational control except that, according to the terms of a scholarship founded by Anne Kendall, Postmaster General in the cabinet of President Andrew Jackson, one trustee must be a Baptist, and the Calvary Baptist Church of Washington as long as the university makes use of the income of this fund, which now provides, in part, for the tuition of one or two students.

Name Still Applied.
"As a tribute to the Baptist founders, the university still applies the name under which it was organized, Columbian College, to one of the four divisions of the department of arts and sciences. This college is, in effect, the college of liberal arts of the university. The dean of Columbian College is Prof. William Allen Wilbur, the widely known Shakespearean scholar and recognized authority in rhetoric. He is not only greatly beloved in the university, but is a Baptist minister in good and regular standing. I noted with interest that at the same session at which the Baptist Association expressed its disapproval of the union of the George Washington University and the American University it sent a message of congratulation to Brother Warren G. Harding, the first Baptist to be elected to the presidency of the United States. It is, therefore, not irrelevant for me to say that Brother Harding is an honorary alumnus of the George Washington University.

"Nearly all faiths are today represented in the membership of the board of trustees as well as in the teaching staff, which comprises 250 professors, assistant professors and other instructors of various grades. Yet no sectarian test is applied. Among the 5,000 students there are Protestants, Roman Catholics, Jews and even a few adherents of oriental religions.

Has Grown Enormously.
"During this non-sectarian period the university has grown enormously in the scope of its work, its prestige, and the number of its students. Its financial resources are still inadequate to its expansion needs, and its almost unlimited possibilities.

"The university feels highly flattered by the attentions which the Baptist Association would now show to it. That it is to have so many suitors is very pleasing, especially as the university and the Baptist Association have been joined together in a union which has been under consideration for so long a time. It is not even the fact that the proposal of the Baptist suitors is virtually a suggestion of the remembrance of a divorced couple, or, at least, of the restitution of conjugal relations between parties that have been separated, will cause me to advise the university to scorn its attentions.

Methodists Must Press Suit.
"I believe there are very few jurisdictions where either the moral law or statute law prohibits such reconciliations and remarriages.

"Under certain conditions the university might be willing to accept more than a sister to the Baptist Association, if the latter should really desire to unite with it for better, for worse, for richer, for poorer and to endow the university with all its worldly goods. It being understood that this means a speedy payment of the $50,000,000. If, therefore, the Methodist suitors, the American University, wishes to win our university, it must press its suit vigorously. Although there has been some talk of a union between it and our university, it could not neglect its present children—the 5,000 students now in actual attendance, most of them in its buildings on G street between 20th and 21st streets.

Never 'Consent to Obedy.'
"We ought, then, to say that our university would never consent to the use of the word 'obey' in the ritual, according to which she would be forever joined together with another. In plain English, if plain English is needed, she would never be willing to submit herself absolutely to the control of another corporation and be entirely merged in it.

"In the second place, our university would not promise to join the church of her new spouse. In other words, it is absolutely essential that the university, after the union, remain absolutely non-sectarian; that no one denomination have control or predominant influence, but that the university be in a position to receive the support of all friends of higher learning and sound morality.

"In the third place, if our university should accept a proposal of marriage from another and start to raise a new family of college sons and daughters, it could not neglect its present children—the 5,000 students now in actual attendance, most of them in its buildings on G street between 20th and 21st streets.

Must Continue on G Street.
"While our university would not marry for money, and while it realizes that

Methodists Must Press Suit.
"I believe there are very few jurisdictions where either the moral law or statute law prohibits such reconciliations and remarriages.

"Under certain conditions the university might be willing to accept more than a sister to the Baptist Association, if the latter should really desire to unite with it for better, for worse, for richer, for poorer and to endow the university with all its worldly goods. It being understood that this means a speedy payment of the $50,000,000. If, therefore, the Methodist suitors, the American University, wishes to win our university, it must press its suit vigorously. Although there has been some talk of a union between it and our university, it could not neglect its present children—the 5,000 students now in actual attendance, most of them in its buildings on G street between 20th and 21st streets.

Never 'Consent to Obedy.'
"We ought, then, to say that our university would never consent to the use of the word 'obey' in the ritual, according to which she would be forever joined together with another. In plain English, if plain English is needed, she would never be willing to submit herself absolutely to the control of another corporation and be entirely merged in it.

"In the second place, our university would not promise to join the church of her new spouse. In other words, it is absolutely essential that the university, after the union, remain absolutely non-sectarian; that no one denomination have control or predominant influence, but that the university be in a position to receive the support of all friends of higher learning and sound morality.

"In the third place, if our university should accept a proposal of marriage from another and start to raise a new family of college sons and daughters, it could not neglect its present children—the 5,000 students now in actual attendance, most of them in its buildings on G street between 20th and 21st streets.

Must Continue on G Street.
"While our university would not marry for money, and while it realizes that

Methodists Must Press Suit.
"I believe there are very few jurisdictions where either the moral law or statute law prohibits such reconciliations and remarriages.

"Under certain conditions the university might be willing to accept more than a sister to the Baptist Association, if the latter should really desire to unite with it for better, for worse, for richer, for poorer and to endow the university with all its worldly goods. It being understood that this means a speedy payment of the $50,000,000. If, therefore, the Methodist suitors, the American University, wishes to win our university, it must press its suit vigorously. Although there has been some talk of a union between it and our university, it could not neglect its present children—the 5,000 students now in actual attendance, most of them in its buildings on G street between 20th and 21st streets.

Never 'Consent to Obedy.'
"We ought, then, to say that our university would never consent to the use of the word 'obey' in the ritual, according to which she would be forever joined together with another. In plain English, if plain English is needed, she would never be willing to submit herself absolutely to the control of another corporation and be entirely merged in it.

"In the second place, our university would not promise to join the church of her new spouse. In other words, it is absolutely essential that the university, after the union, remain absolutely non-sectarian; that no one denomination have control or predominant influence, but that the university be in a position to receive the support of all friends of higher learning and sound morality.

"In the third place, if our university should accept a proposal of marriage from another and start to raise a new family of college sons and daughters, it could not neglect its present children—the 5,000 students now in actual attendance, most of them in its buildings on G street between 20th and 21st streets.

Must Continue on G Street.
"While our university would not marry for money, and while it realizes that

Methodists Must Press Suit.
"I believe there are very few jurisdictions where either the moral law or statute law prohibits such reconciliations and remarriages.

"Under certain conditions the university might be willing to accept more than a sister to the Baptist Association, if the latter should really desire to unite with it for better, for worse, for richer, for poorer and to endow the university with all its worldly goods. It being understood that this means a speedy payment of the $50,000,000. If, therefore, the Methodist suitors, the American University, wishes to win our university, it must press its suit vigorously. Although there has been some talk of a union between it and our university, it could not neglect its present children—the 5,000 students now in actual attendance, most of them in its buildings on G street between 20th and 21st streets.

Never 'Consent to Obedy.'
"We ought, then, to say that our university would never consent to the use of the word 'obey' in the ritual, according to which she would be forever joined together with another. In plain English, if plain English is needed, she would never be willing to submit herself absolutely to the control of another corporation and be entirely merged in it.

"In the second place, our university would not promise to join the church of her new spouse. In other words, it is absolutely essential that the university, after the union, remain absolutely non-sectarian; that no one denomination have control or predominant influence, but that the university be in a position to receive the support of all friends of higher learning and sound morality.

Abe Martin Says:

Mrs. Tipton Bud has a nephew that's almost nineteen years old an' he's never stolen a car.

A word t' th' wise is superfluous.

of the word "obey" in the ritual, according to which she would be forever joined together with another. In plain English, if plain English is needed, she would never be willing to submit herself absolutely to the control of another corporation and be entirely merged in it.

"In the second place, our university would not promise to join the church of her new spouse. In other words, it is absolutely essential that the university, after the union, remain absolutely non-sectarian; that no one denomination have control or predominant influence, but that the university be in a position to receive the support of all friends of higher learning and sound morality.

"In the third place, if our university should accept a proposal of marriage from another and start to raise a new family of college sons and daughters, it could not neglect its present children—the 5,000 students now in actual attendance, most of them in its buildings on G street between 20th and 21st streets.

Must Continue on G Street.
"While our university would not marry for money, and while it realizes that

Methodists Must Press Suit.
"I believe there are very few jurisdictions where either the moral law or statute law prohibits such reconciliations and remarriages.

"Under certain conditions the university might be willing to accept more than a sister to the Baptist Association, if the latter should really desire to unite with it for better, for worse, for richer, for poorer and to endow the university with all its worldly goods. It being understood that this means a speedy payment of the $50,000,000. If, therefore, the Methodist suitors, the American University, wishes to win our university, it must press its suit vigorously. Although there has been some talk of a union between it and our university, it could not neglect its present children—the 5,000 students now in actual attendance, most of them in its buildings on G street between 20th and 21st streets.

Never 'Consent to Obedy.'
"We ought, then, to say that our university would never consent to the use of the word 'obey' in the ritual, according to which she would be forever joined together with another. In plain English, if plain English is needed, she would never be willing to submit herself absolutely to the control of another corporation and be entirely merged in it.

"In the second place, our university would not promise to join the church of her new spouse. In other words, it is absolutely essential that the university, after the union, remain absolutely non-sectarian; that no one denomination have control or predominant influence, but that the university be in a position to receive the support of all friends of higher learning and sound morality.

"In the third place, if our university should accept a proposal of marriage from another and start to raise a new family of college sons and daughters, it could not neglect its present children—the 5,000 students now in actual attendance, most of them in its buildings on G street between 20th and 21st streets.

Must Continue on G Street.
"While our university would not marry for money, and while it realizes that

Methodists Must Press Suit.
"I believe there are very few jurisdictions where either the moral law or statute law prohibits such reconciliations and remarriages.

"Under certain conditions the university might be willing to accept more than a sister to the Baptist Association, if the latter should really desire to unite with it for better, for worse, for richer, for poorer and to endow the university with all its worldly goods. It being understood that this means a speedy payment of the $50,000,000. If, therefore, the Methodist suitors, the American University, wishes to win our university, it must press its suit vigorously. Although there has been some talk of a union between it and our university, it could not neglect its present children—the 5,000 students now in actual attendance, most of them in its buildings on G street between 20th and 21st streets.

Never 'Consent to Obedy.'
"We ought, then, to say that our university would never consent to the use of the word 'obey' in the ritual, according to which she would be forever joined together with another. In plain English, if plain English is needed, she would never be willing to submit herself absolutely to the control of another corporation and be entirely merged in it.

"In the second place, our university would not promise to join the church of her new spouse. In other words, it is absolutely essential that the university, after the union, remain absolutely non-sectarian; that no one denomination have control or predominant influence, but that the university be in a position to receive the support of all friends of higher learning and sound morality.

"In the third place, if our university should accept a proposal of marriage from another and start to raise a new family of college sons and daughters, it could not neglect its present children—the 5,000 students now in actual attendance, most of them in its buildings on G street between 20th and 21st streets.

Must Continue on G Street.
"While our university would not marry for money, and while it realizes that

Methodists Must Press Suit.
"I believe there are very few jurisdictions where either the moral law or statute law prohibits such reconciliations and remarriages.

"Under certain conditions the university might be willing to accept more than a sister to the Baptist Association, if the latter should really desire to unite with it for better, for worse, for richer, for poorer and to endow the university with all its worldly goods. It being understood that this means a speedy payment of the $50,000,000. If, therefore, the Methodist suitors, the American University, wishes to win our university, it must press its suit vigorously. Although there has been some talk of a union between it and our university, it could not neglect its present children—the 5,000 students now in actual attendance, most of them in its buildings on G street between 20th and 21st streets.

Never 'Consent to Obedy.'
"We ought, then, to say that our university would never consent to the use of the word 'obey' in the ritual, according to which she would be forever joined together with another. In plain English, if plain English is needed, she would never be willing to submit herself absolutely to the control of another corporation and be entirely merged in it.

"In the second place, our university would not promise to join the church of her new spouse. In other words, it is absolutely essential that the university, after the union, remain absolutely non-sectarian; that no one denomination have control or predominant influence, but that the university be in a position to receive the support of all friends of higher learning and sound morality.

"In the third place, if our university should accept a proposal of marriage from another and start to raise a new family of college sons and daughters, it could not neglect its present children—the 5,000 students now in actual attendance, most of them in its buildings on G street between 20th and 21st streets.

Must Continue on G Street.
"While our university would not marry for money, and while it realizes that

Methodists Must Press Suit.
"I believe there are very few jurisdictions where either the moral law or statute law prohibits such reconciliations and remarriages.

"Under certain conditions the university might be willing to accept more than a sister to the Baptist Association, if the latter should really desire to unite with it for better, for worse, for richer, for poorer and to endow the university with all its worldly goods. It being understood that this means a speedy payment of the $50,000,000. If, therefore, the Methodist suitors, the American University, wishes to win our university, it must press its suit vigorously. Although there has been some talk of a union between it and our university, it could not neglect its present children—the 5,000 students now in actual attendance, most of them in its buildings on G street between 20th and 21st streets.

Never 'Consent to Obedy.'
"We ought, then, to say that our university would never consent to the use of the word 'obey' in the ritual, according to which she would be forever joined together with another. In plain English, if plain English is needed, she would never be willing to submit herself absolutely to the control of another corporation and be entirely merged in it.

"In the second place, our university would not promise to join the church of her new spouse. In other words, it is absolutely essential that the university, after the union, remain absolutely non-sectarian; that no one denomination have control or predominant influence, but that the university be in a position to receive the support of all friends of higher learning and sound morality.

"In the third place, if our university should accept a proposal of marriage from another and start to raise a new family of college sons and daughters, it could not neglect its present children—the 5,000 students now in actual attendance, most of them in its buildings on G street between 20th and 21st streets.

Must Continue on G Street.
"While our university would not marry for money, and while it realizes that the enlarged family that would come into being would require a larger home—new and larger buildings—it would insist that the new conjugal partner help support the present family financially. It believes that family harmony requires that most of the present family be cared for in the present home on G street. In other words, if a union is effected, although a great growth may fairly be expected, and although a campus and additional buildings elsewhere may possibly become necessary, the work now carried on on G street must be continued and very greatly expanded, and the university that unites with us must bring funds that can be used for this purpose. A union would not be valuable if the George Washington University could not better itself financially. It would be hurtful and ruinous if the sole effect were to create the need of new buildings without bringing money to pay for greatly needed new buildings in the vicinity of G street.

"Upon such conditions as these, a union might, perhaps, be effected. But the union that is absolutely necessary if a great university is to exist in the nation's capital, besides the two now under Roman Catholic control, is a union of all the other universities to be supported by all the denominations except the one which is now pledged to support the Catholic University and the Georgetown University, and which does this so generously and so efficiently.

Does Not Imply Hostility.
"This does not imply hostility to the Catholic University or to the Georgetown University, but merely a desire to unite and consolidate the other universities which are now existing

When Cold Weather Arrives
—and your heating system proves unsatisfactory—
CALL ON US
To Repair or Remodel Your
HOT-WATER OR VAPOR
HEATING SYSTEM

We are prepared with the necessary material and expert workmen to install a new plant or remodel your present one without delay.

ACT NOW—
Biggs Heating Co.
W. H. Gottlieb, R. E. Kunzberry,
Pres. Vics Pres.
917 H St. N.W.
PHONE MAIN 4836.

WHEN COLD WEATHER ARRIVES
—and your heating system proves unsatisfactory—
CALL ON US
To Repair or Remodel Your
HOT-WATER OR VAPOR
HEATING SYSTEM

We are prepared with the necessary material and expert workmen to install a new plant or remodel your present one without delay.

ACT NOW—
Biggs Heating Co.
W. H. Gottlieb, R. E. Kunzberry,
Pres. Vics Pres.
917 H St. N.W.
PHONE MAIN 4836.

WHEN COLD WEATHER ARRIVES
—and your heating system proves unsatisfactory—
CALL ON US
To Repair or Remodel Your
HOT-WATER OR VAPOR
HEATING SYSTEM

We are prepared with the necessary material and expert workmen to install a new plant or remodel your present one without delay.

ACT NOW—
Biggs Heating Co.
W. H. Gottlieb, R. E. Kunzberry,
Pres. Vics Pres.
917 H St. N.W.
PHONE MAIN 4836.

WHEN COLD WEATHER ARRIVES
—and your heating system proves unsatisfactory—
CALL ON US
To Repair or Remodel Your
HOT-WATER OR VAPOR
HEATING SYSTEM

We are prepared with the necessary material and expert workmen to install a new plant or remodel your present one without delay.

ACT NOW—
Biggs Heating Co.
W. H. Gottlieb, R. E. Kunzberry,
Pres. Vics Pres.
917 H St. N.W.
PHONE MAIN 4836.

WHEN COLD WEATHER ARRIVES
—and your heating system proves unsatisfactory—
CALL ON US
To Repair or Remodel Your
HOT-WATER OR VAPOR
HEATING SYSTEM

We are prepared with the necessary material and expert workmen to install a new plant or remodel your present one without delay.

ACT NOW—
Biggs Heating Co.
W. H. Gottlieb, R. E. Kunzberry,
Pres. Vics Pres.
917 H St. N.W.
PHONE MAIN 4836.

WHEN COLD WEATHER ARRIVES
—and your heating system proves unsatisfactory—
CALL ON US
To Repair or Remodel Your
HOT-WATER OR VAPOR
HEATING SYSTEM

We are prepared with the necessary material and expert workmen to install a new plant or remodel your present one without delay.

ACT NOW—
Biggs Heating Co.
W. H. Gottlieb, R. E. Kunzberry,
Pres. Vics Pres.
917 H St. N.W.
PHONE MAIN 4836.

WHEN COLD WEATHER ARRIVES
—and your heating system proves unsatisfactory—
CALL ON US
To Repair or Remodel Your
HOT-WATER OR VAPOR
HEATING SYSTEM

We are prepared with the necessary material and expert workmen to install a new plant or remodel your present one without delay.

ACT NOW—
Biggs Heating Co.
W. H. Gottlieb, R. E. Kunzberry,
Pres. Vics Pres.
917 H St. N.W.
PHONE MAIN 4836.

WHEN COLD WEATHER ARRIVES
—and your heating system proves unsatisfactory—
CALL ON US
To Repair or Remodel Your
HOT-WATER OR VAPOR
HEATING SYSTEM

We are prepared with the necessary material and expert workmen to install a new plant or remodel your present one without delay.

ACT NOW—
Biggs Heating Co.
W. H. Gottlieb, R. E. Kunzberry,
Pres. Vics Pres.
917 H St. N.W.
PHONE MAIN 4836.